DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office action is in response to the amendment filed on 5/21/07.
2. Claims 32, 33, 36 and 39-53 are pending.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's argument that Richards does not disclose all limitations of claims 32 and 36 because Richards does not "providing multiple skeleton decryption keys for multiple encrypted documents, where a single skeleton key can be used to open multiple encrypted documents," (Remarks, pg. 6) is not persuasive. Richards discloses using multiple keys for decrypting a plurality of encrypted programs, wherein a single key can be used to decrypt the plurality of encrypted programs contained in a package, (14:1-38) which anticipates the aforementioned limitation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. Claims 32, 33, 36, 39-41, 43-46 and 48-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Richards USPN 6,069,957. (hereinafter Richards)
5. As per claims 32, 33 and 39-41, Richards discloses a computer-implemented method for managing access to electronic documents, comprising:
 - a. Providing in an access controlled manner multiple skeleton decryption keys for multiple encrypted documents, where a single skeleton key can be used to open multiple encrypted documents, a single encrypted document can be opened using more than one skeleton key, and a single skeleton key can be opened using one or more other skeleton keys; (11:4-26; 12:1-37; 14:21-28)

b. Each single skeleton key being a key usable to decrypt one or more secondary decryption keys; (11:15-22) and

c. Each secondary decryption key being a skeleton key or a decryption key for an encrypted document (11:15-22);

d. Whereby one or more skeleton keys can be issued for a document or a set of documents, and a holder of a particular skeleton key can open any document to which the particular skeleton key applies, directly or indirectly (14:20-28);

e. Wherein the skeleton keys are distributed to users in rights management files. (11:4-25; 14:21-22; 16:4-10)

f. Wherein the rights management files are specific to particular users (4:60-5:28; 5:50-52; 14:1-23);

g. Wherein the rights management files are specific to a particular user-operated system (11:1-13 and lines 30-33);

h. The method further comprising encrypting documents and skeleton keys in a symmetric manner. (3:29-31)

6. As per claims 36 and 43-46, they are claims corresponding to claims 32, 33 and 39-41, and they do not teach or define above the information claimed in claims 32, 33 and 39-41. Therefore, claims 36 and 43-46 are rejected as being anticipated by Richards for the same reasons set forth in the rejections of claims 32, 33 and 39-41.

7. As per claims 48-52, they are claims corresponding to claims 32, 33, 36, 39-41 and 43-46; moreover, Richards discloses means for providing in an access-controlled manner the multiple skeleton decryption keys. (Col. 4:60-5:29; 11:22-25; 16:4-10) Hence, claims 48-52 are rejected as being anticipated by Richards for the same reasons set forth in the rejections of claims 32, 33, 36, 39-41 and 43-46.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

8. Claims 42, 47 and 53 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Richards in view of Stallings, Cryptography and Network Security, Chapter 6 "Public-Key Cryptography." (hereinafter Stallings).

9. As per claim 42, the rejection of claim 32 under 35 USC 102(b) as being anticipated by Richards is incorporated herein. (supra) Richards does not disclose the method further comprising encrypting documents and skeleton keys in an asymmetric manner. However, it is well known to one of ordinary skill in the art to utilize public key encryption to securely distribute secret keys and to encrypt documents because public key encryption provides the following benefits over symmetric encryption: authentication and a more robust security than symmetric encryption based on similar key lengths and cryptographic manipulations. For example, Stallings discloses using public keys to encrypt documents for secure transmission. Pg. 166, Fig. 6.1. Stallings further discloses a secret key distribution method that ensures confidentiality and authentication wherein a session key is encrypted with a private key and decrypted using a public key. Pgs. 187-189, "Public-Key Distribution of Secret Keys;" in particular, see pgs. 188-189, "Secret Key with Confidentiality and Authentication." As applied to the invention of Richards, asymmetric encryption of a document and the document decryption key offers such benefits as authentication and robust encryption using a smaller key size. Therefore, it would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made for the method of Richard to further comprising encrypting documents and skeleton keys in an asymmetric manner. One would be motivated to so to make use of the advantages of asymmetric encryption over symmetric encryption including authentication and smaller key size as known to one of ordinary skill in the art. The aforementioned cover the limitations of claim 42.

10. As per claims 47 and 53, they are claims corresponding to claims 36, 42 and 48, and they do not teach or define above the information claimed in claims 36, 42 and 48. Therefore, claims 47 and 53 are rejected as being unpatentable over Richards in view of Stallings for the same reasons set forth in the rejections of claims 36, 42 and 48.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
